WEINER GETS 2-4 YEARS, FINE

President Asks Power To Reduce Personal Income Taxes, Tariffs

Is Eligible For Parole In 16 Mos.

By KEN RABBen
Courier-Times Staff Writer

CAMDEN, N. J. — Dr. Albert L. Weiner was sentenced to from two to four years in the state prison at Trenton this morning and fined $12,000.

Dr. Weiner was convicted in 12 of 15 counts of manslaughter Dec. 19 in Camden County Court. The 44-year-old Erlton, N. J., osteopath who specializes in neuro-psychiatry was released in $20,000 bail shortly before 2 p.m. today.

Weiner will be free pending the outcome of an appeal of his conviction to be taken to the appellate division of New Jersey's superior court.

I. V. DiMartino, who represented

Dr. Weiner in court this morning, said he will also appeal last month's revocation of Dr. Weiner's license to practice medicine and surgery in New Jersey. DiMartino said grounds for the appeal on the license would be that Dr. Weiner had not been convicted of a crime of moral turpitude.

Judge Edward V. Martino, who granted the bail request, had earlier in the day sentenced Dr. Weiner.

Opposes Bail

Camden County Prosecutor Norman Heine opposed the granting of bail.

Following brief arguments by both attorneys, Judge Martino decided to grant the bail request.

From the time Dr. Weiner was arrested and brought before the Camden County grand jury in August, 1960, and throughout the eight-week trial, Dr. Weiner had been free in $7,500 bail.

Things Can Happen

Judge Martino said he would increase the bail to $20,000 because "in the present day and age of travel, things can happen."

"We should make bail sufficiently high so that the county can at least recover the money (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Indict 13 On Price Fixing

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Indictments were returned yesterday by a Federal Grand Jury here against 13 major electronics companies on charges of price fixing in the sale of $21,480,000 worth of parts to military and commercial users.

The jury also named nine individuals as part of its continued investigation following the indictment of three major corporations in 1960 on charges of violating the federal anti-trust laws.

In three separate true bills, the jury charged fixing of prices of film resistors used in air navigation and missile guidance systems, electrical circuits and computers and test and control equipment along with deflection yokes and flyback transformers used by commercial television.

The defendants were scheduled for arraignment before the U. S. District Court here Feb. 20.

After Next Hearing Palouian To Get 3-Mos. Mental Tests

By PAUL ALTAIRE
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Masis Palouian of Trevose, accused of planting a bomb on the lawn of Congressman William Green of Philadelphia on Dec. 14 will undergo psychiatric examination at Norristown State Hospital.

But Palouian, 36-year-old self-styled "Freedom Fighter," will not be committed there until after his hearing next Thursday on the bombing charges.

On the recommendation of Dr. John G. Torney, director of neuro-psychiatry for Quarter Sessions Court, Philadelphia, judge Vincent A. Carrol deferred signing the order so that the hearing Monday would not interfere with the psychiatric treatment.

The treatment will last 90 days. Palouian, whose address is 4344 Old Lincoln Highway, has been living with his brother-in-law at 4717 Unruh St., Philadelphia, since (Continued on Page 3, Col. 5)

29 Of 60 Companies At Session County Fire School Fund Drive Delayed

Only 29 of Bucks County's 60 volunteer fire companies were represented last night at a meeting at Lahaska to plan a $150,000 fund drive for a new fireman's training school.

A. Marlyn Moyer Jr., Trevose, chairman of the steering committee of the fire school drive, noting that 31 fire companies were absent declared: "This isn't very encouraging." Letters had been sent to each volunteer fire company in the county asking the chief and president to attend.

Another meeting will be held in Lahaska on Wednesday, Feb. 23, when the fire chiefs and presidents will decide whether they really want the school.

Yale-Towne Pickets Clash With Police

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Police and pickets scuffled briefly today at the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company plant as newly hired employees reported for work.

Police reinforcements totaling between 400 and 500 men were on duty at the plant from early morning.

Pickets from Lodge 1717 International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) marched down Roosevelt Blvd. to the main entrance of the plant as the new employees went into the building. The union has been out on strike since Aug. 31. The company began hiring replacement workers this week.

Some pickets broke away from the main gate and threw themselves on the ground in plant driveways. Police took about half a dozen away in vans. There was some scuffling in the process.

Some three hours after the new employees entered, about 80 pickets marched up to the gates and engaged in a pushing and shoving match with police. Seven men were arrested and scheduled for a hearing later today on charges of violating a court order of an injunction against mass picketing. The pickets closed Roosevelt (Continued on Page 3, Col. 6)

Wife Admits Aiding Hubby In Relief Case

A 37-year-old Levittown housewife pleaded guilty in Bucks County Court yesterday to helping her husband collect $640.10 in false public assistance claims.

President Judge Edward G. Biester deferred sentencing Mrs. Dorothy Barlowe, 75 Autumn Lane, Appletree Hill, until Feb. 2, pending the outcome of the case of her husband, Francis, 39. He was indicted by the grand jury yesterday with fraudulently obtaining public assistance and is slated to go on trial during the week of Jan. 22.

Believed 1st Case

Mrs. Janice Rodriguez, executive director of the Bucks County Board of Assistance, said she believes this is the first case of its kind to come to Bucks County Court.

The Barlowes were released under $600 bail.

Charles L. Siegler, caseworker for the board of assistance, testified that he visited the Barlowe home three times in 1959 and 1960 and that on each visit Mrs. Barlowe told him neither she nor her husband was employed or receiving income from employment.

16 Checks

The Barlowes received public assistance checks from Sept. 23, 1959, to Mar. 22, 1960, Siegler said. He produced photostatic copies of 16 checks, some of which were endorsed by Mrs. Barlowe. Siegler also produced an application for public assistance made in the board's Doylestown office Nov. 23, 1959.

He said all signers of applications agree to notify the board of any change in their financial status. On the back of each relief check, above the endorsement space, he said, is a statement that the recipient has no change in his financial status.

Cold Wave To Continue

The weatherman said this morning that, although the official low temperature last night only dipped to 12 degrees, there were unofficial readings of as low as four degrees above zero in several sections of Lower Bucks.

The man said the four-degree readings were at ground level, where most of us live, while the official reading was taken atop Trenton's post office. He explained that frequently on clear, windless nights the temperature at the top of a tall building is somewhat higher than it is at ground level.

The predictor said that the cold will continue today and tonight, with a high today of about 25 and a low tonight of about 10. Tomorrow, however, will be slightly warmer, with a high in the mid-30s.

No precipitation is foreseen within the next couple of days. Meanwhile, in other sections of (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

Berlin, Laos Are 'Critical' In Message

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy asked Congress today for an array of new economic tools, including discretionary power to cut tariffs and reduce personal income taxes, to strengthen the Free World against the Communist offensive.

In his State of the Union message to the newly convened lawmakers, Kennedy said a cold war armistice "seems very far away." He noted particularly the critical problems posed by Berlin, Laos and Viet Nam.

He cited with obvious pride, however, U.S. military progress during his first year in the White House.

House and said his new defense budget provides for more missiles, men and substantial increases in Air Force fighter units.

This country, he said, has "rejected any all-or-nothing posture which would leave no choice but inglorious retreat or unlimited retaliation."

Prosperity At Home

Kennedy's wide-ranging economic, defense and foreign policy proposals were keyed to the theory that prosperity must be maintained at home to counter successfully the constant threat of military, political and economic aggression by the Communists.

His 6,000-word message, delivered in person to a joint session of the House and Senate, was carried to the rest of the country and overseas by radio and television.

The President sought an extensive domestic legislative package, some parts of which were sure to provoke controversy in this election year.

To slow any future recession, he asked for standby authority, subject to congressional veto, to cut personal income tax rates within a specified range. While he did not go into details, it was learned he wanted power to cut (Continued on Page 10)

Mountain Ice Slide In Peru Buries 3,000

HUARAZ, Peru (UPI)—A rumbling avalanche 40 feet high and half-a-mile wide crashed down towering Mt. Huascaran late yesterday, crushing a half-dozen villages and burying possibly 3,000 persons.

Police and army sources at the scene, 30 miles north of here, said the destroyed villages had a total population of about 3,100 persons. They feared all had perished.

Authorities said, however, it probably would be days before the casualty totals could be determined.

A similar avalanche destroyed Huaraz 20 years ago, killing 3,000 persons.

Col. Humberto Ampuero, directing rescue services, said the villages were buried in mud, ice and rocks, interlaced with uprooted trees.

Ampuero told UPI in Lima by telephone that he urgently needed a battalion of engineers. But he said he needed machines more than men to move the rubble.

Weather Not Good

Ampuero said an air force reconnaissance plane was over the area but that the weather was not good. He said there was no sign of injured survivors up to 8 a.m., but that he felt some residents must have escaped death. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 4) settlement agent for the state welfare department, said his investigation disclosed that Barlowe earned $3,958.10 while receiving public assistance checks. McGlinchey said his office sent the Barlowes three notices to report and arrange to repay the relief money but they never reported.

Albert Kahler, owner of a service station in Ridley Park, said Barlowe worked for him from Nov. 27, 1959, to Oct. 24, 1960, and earned $4,018.10.

Mrs. Barlowe, represented by public defender Isaac S. Garb, did not testify. Judge Biester said he will hear her testimony before passing sentence.

Cold Wave

the country death-dealing crop-devastating cold stretched from the Arctic Circle to Mexico today. It iced beaches along the Gulf Coast and brought below freezing temperatures to 44 states.

The cold wave, one of the most severe in 60 years, dropped thermometers below zero as far south as Louisiana.

The death toll from the week-long onslaught reached at least 114. Illinois had 21 deaths; Wisconsin 17; Texas 12; Michigan 9; Colorado 7; Iowa 6; Missouri and Arkansas 4 each; California, Oklahoma, Montana, New Hampshire and Massachusetts 3 each; South Carolina, Indiana, North Carolina, Alabama, New York, Ohio, and Kansas 2 each; and New Mexico, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Ohio and Louisiana had serious natural gas shortages, forcing emergency curtailment of supplies to schools and industrial users.

Ruins Crops
The Southland's spring vegetable crop was all but ruined. Farmers feared for citrus groves in Texas' Rio Grande Valley, where the temperature failed to climb above freezing for more than 24 hours.

Schools remained closed in 11 states. Alabama battled 14-foot snow drifts. A rash of fires claimed lives from the Midwest to the Cotton Belt. Highway travel was all but paralyzed in the South.

Man, 20, Jailed On Sex Charges
A man identified as Frederick Sylvester, 20, 413 Logan Ave., Croydon, was committed to Bucks County prison yesterday, charged with a series of sex offenses, Bristol Township police reported this morning.

Sylvester, Philadelphia printing pressman, was arrested Tuesday night by township detective Edward Ellison. Details of his alleged offenses were not revealed.

Justice of the Peace Joseph M. Haines committed the suspect to prison to await trial on the charges.

Going In Circles
By Ken Rabben

Jack Rosen, Levittown's Leicott lensman has put his home community in the national and international limelight again.

The free-lance photographer had published in last Sunday's issue of "Parade", a nationally syndicated magazine supplement, pictures of local pre-teenagers taking part in a canteen dance at the Penn Valley Elementary School, Levittown.

Some of the pictures of Levittown children Rosen exhibited several months ago in a "one-man" show at the Philadelphia National Bank's Levittown Shop-A-Rama branch will be seen in the forthcoming issue of "Family Weekly," another nationally syndicated magazine supplement.

The picture story shows some of the ways in which children raise their hands.

Several other Rosen photographs of Levittown youngsters will soon appear in a top German magazine.

Falls Township police officer Elliot (Russ) Bainbridge stopped at Camden County Court during the early days of the Weiner trial to keep fellow officer James V. McManamon company.

McManamon was due to take the witness stand, but the lunch recess intervened. Russ, McManamon and reporters walked across the street from the City Hall that houses the court to a restaurant. Prices at this bistro are in the range of those that charge $1.25 for a hamburger.

Russ ordered soup, a chopped steak and a double order of mashed potatoes with gravy. He ate six or seven buttered rolls while downing this meal.

As Russ finished his feast, the maitre'd hotel stopped by the table, looked at Russ and asked, "Well, how was everything?"

Russ said, "taint." The puzzled host asked, "taint? What's that mean?"

Host: You mean you're still hungry? What did you have for lunch?

Russ told him. The nice man disappeared for a few minutes and returned with a full, fresh platter for the Falls' chow-hound.

Russ polished this off, too. Then conversation turned to whether or not traffic at the close of court would delay all hands from stopping at a nearby steak house for a snack.

Russ was convinced by his friends that the snack would spoil his dinner appetite and that he should go home and let his wife feed him. That's just what Russ did.

What Russ ate for dinner that night has been classified "top secret" by fellow police officers.

in the event that the defendant is not available."

The entire sentencing proceedings took about 30 minutes. Heine opened with an address to the court followed by a plea from DeMartino.

Judge Martino discussed the case for a few minutes before pronouncing sentence.

Wife, Brother Attend

Dr. Weiner was wearing a gray suit, white shirt and blue tie, an outfit he had worn many times during the trial. Mrs. Weiner and his brother Irvin sat in the courtroom.

Mrs. Weiner was wearing a black dress with a string of pearls at the neck.

When Judge Martino pronounced his sentence, Mrs. Weiner leaned forward from her court bench and her brother-in-law put his arm around her. Irvin Weiner was muttering to himself. However, Mrs. Weiner said nothing.

Dr. Weiner's face was drawn and he seemed on the verge of tears.

However he, too, had nothing to say.

Parole Eligibility

Under New Jersey law Dr. Weiner may be eligible for parole after serving one-third of his maximum term, which would be 16 months, minus time off for good behavior.

Conceivably he could be released within a year.

He was fined $1,000 on each of the 12 counts for which he had been convicted.

His sentence was two to four years on each count with the sentences to run concurrently. If he cannot pay the fine he will remain in jail until it is paid.

In his speech to the court Heine said it was needless to repeat the events that led to Dr. Weiner's conviction. The trial was the longest in the county's history, he said, and was a difficult one to prove. The state considered him guilty on all 15 counts, he said, but a jury found him innocent on three.

Considerable Good

The jury by its verdict, he said, indicated that it felt Dr. Weiner should go to prison.

Over and above the gross criminal negligence exhibited by Dr. Weiner, the case might have done considerable good for the public, he said. The prosecution had received several letters from doctors, he said, indicating that they would exercise more care in their practices.

"We proved our case beyond any doubt," he said.

In New Jersey, Heine said, voluntary and involuntary manslaughter are not broken down.

Because of the expense of the trial to the state, he said, he believed the maximum fine should be assessed; it is $1,000 on each count.

"On the other hand, this should not be the limit of punishment. A prison sentence would be a deterrent to others whereas only a fine could be considered as a license to continue with negligence," he declared.

Personal Friendship

DeMartino talked about his personal friendship with Dr. Weiner and about the doctor's family of three children, two of whom are honor students at school, he said.

He said he felt that Dr. Weiner already had been more than adequately punished. His license had been suspended some time ago and since then he has had no income, the attorney said. Dr. Weiner and his brothers are completely drained of finances because of the expense of the defense, he declared.

The general public does not need the lesson a jail sentence would teach, he said. Only the medical profession needs such a lesson and that, he said, already has been learned. Doctors have shown that they are purchasing new sterilization instruments by the thousands, DeMartino said.

Gentle, Honest

Incarceration should not be called for merely to satisfy the public's ire, he said.

He described Dr. Weiner as a good, gentle and honest man, who did not do anything with evil intent. The court, he said, was not dealing with a killer or a rapist.

"I ask, I even beg for the mercy of the court," he said.

During discussion of the sentence, Judge Martino said that during the course of the trial the defense had asked what sentence might be forthcoming if Dr. Weiner's plea were changed to one of guilty. He would not answer the question, he said.

Crime Preventive

Judge Martino said, "What to do with the individual who violates the law has been a persistent problem since the beginning of society. Punishment is the means, not the end, of criminal justice. It has two ends, deterrent and rehabilitation. Each of these is a preventive of crime.

"A prison sentence demonstrates to others the consequences of committing a crime. Some knowledge that a penalty will be imposed in some situations may deter an individual tempted to violate a law. However, a severe sentence can produce a deteriorating condition without any benefit to society.

"This defendant, I am sure," the judge said, "did not contemplate that his criminal conduct would cause or threaten serious harm and I am convinced that his conduct was the result of circumstances that will not recur.

Made Changes

"The lessons taught by this litigation should be incorporated in the textbooks used by medical students," he said. "Some practitioners I am sure have made changes in their practices.

"Conviction in this case is not an indictment of the entire medical profession," he said. "And when I use the term medical profession I do not mean to distinguish between osteopathy and medicine."

Dr. Weiner's trial revolved around his aseptic procedures and the fact that according to the state when he learned some of his patients had become ill he did not take the precautions he should. He spread a liver ailment known as serum hepatitis, according to the state, throughout his practice, thus through his negligence causing the 12 deaths.

Longest In History

Top experts in liver diseases and epidemiology testified for both the state and the defense in the trial, the longest in Camden County and undoubtedly one of the most expensive. More than 100 exhibits were introduced and more than 100 witnesses, including many of the doctor's patients who contracted liver disease but recovered, as well as relatives of those who died.

Picket Hurt As Truck Crosses Line

A picket was injured this morning when a truck carrying roofing materials went through a line of pickets at a Sears warehouse under construction in Fallsington, Falls Township police said this morning.

Taken to Lower Bucks County Hospital was Francis Hughes, 31, of Philadelphia. He is being X-rayed at the hospital for back injuries.

According to spokesmen from the two unions picketing the construction site, five men were hit when the tar truck driven by William Alper of the Camden, N. J. roofing concern, drove through the line. They said that Hughes was knocked down. Police said one of the men, Jacob Ehrenreich of Philadelphia, filed a complaint. No arrests were made, they said.

The two unions are Local 30, Composition Roofers, AFL-CIO, and Local 542, Operating Engineers, AFL-CIO.

The unions are picketing against the I. Alper Co. purportedly because the firm is "destroying industry building standards" and paying wages below the union level.

There were 52 pickets in all covering several entrances to the extensive building site on Lower Morrisville Road.

Union spokesmen said that William Alper jumped behind the wheel of the truck when one of his drivers balked as the driver approached the picket line. Alper drove through, knocking Hughes down and striking four other men, the spokesmen said.

Subcontractor

The Alper firm is subcontractor for the McDonough Construction Company of Atlanta, Ga.

Ben Alper, one of the owners of the firm, this morning told a reporter that the union refused to accept his company into membership. This was because the two unions employ "discriminatory practices," he said.

He charged the unions with discriminating against the Negro workers that his company hired.

They might be under the rubble or wandering in a daze.

Ampuro appealed over the radio to the national government for all possible aid. Relief planes stood by in Lima ready to take off as soon as the weather cleared.

An engineer battalion was en route to the scene to help clear away rubble. The threat of floods, however, added to the horror of the disaster area. The rain-swollen Santa River was lapping at its banks.

Saw Slide Coming

First reports of the disaster came from Dr. Leoncio Guzman, who may have been the only survivor. He saw the slide cascading down the mountain as he returned from a nearby hospital. He tried to reach his home to warn his family but he was too late.

Guzman said the hardest hit villages were Ranahirca, Sacha, Huarachuco and Uchucoto. They lie between Carhuaz and Yungay.

Huacaran, a 22,205-foot extinct volcano 30 miles north of here, is Peru's tallest mountain and one of the highest in the towering Andes chain.

Cold Duty At Picket Line

These police officers, stationed this morning at the Yale and Towne company plant, try to warm up in the 10 above zero weather. The strike situation generated some heat about 7 a.m. when several pickets sat down in the driveway of the plant to block entrance of non-striking employees. Between three and fifteen pickets were removed bodily by police and taken to the police station. Some pushing, and much cat-calling, also marked this morning's activities. (Courier-Times Photo) the winter began.

It was at this address that Philadelphia police visited Palouian and asked him to come to the Harbison Ave.-Levick St. police station to verify his gun permit which had been revoked last year.

But Palouian never did get to verify such a permit. Police used the ruse to get him into a line-up at which Charles Carder, 37, of 208 Doone Road, Fairless Hills, identified him as the man Carder said he sold some Japanese pipe caps to at the Feasterville hardware store where Carder worked. Carder said the pipe caps were

Palouian to the state hospital, Judge Carrol told Palouian, "You must understand that this does not have any bearing on your guilt or innocence of the charges."

Judge Carrol told Palouian that this was just a precaution in his own interest as well as that of the Commonwealth.

"You have a good history as a law-abiding citizen," the judge said. "But you also have a history of mental illness.

For Own Good
This does not pre-suppose that you have committed a crime—there is not enough evidence of this. But treatment would be for your own good."

Judge Carrol then said, "I received a wonderful letter about you from a former teacher of yours — a Mrs. Wilson — who is now retired.

"She said you were a wonderful student at Dobbins High School (Philadelphia), and that you were very much aware of your American rights."

Those 72 Bristol Township residents who were given summonses for failing to clean their sidewalks after the heavy snowfall of Dec. 23 will be hearing more about it by early next week, according to township Justice of the Peace Joseph M. Haines.

Squire Haines said he has prepared informations against the offenders and will distribute them as soon as they are returned from the printer.

The informations will require the property owners either to pay a fine or to convince the JP that they should not have to for some good reason.

A township ordinance provides for fines up to $25 and costs for failing to clean sidewalks after snowstorms.

The strikers were attempting to re-establish a mass picket line which had been forbidden by a court injunction issued Oct. 3. An estimated 200 strikers engaged in the scuffle with police.

The mass picket line was attempted after the Philadelphia AFL-CIO Council urged the strikers "to man a solid picket line to stop the strikebreakers regardless of the injunction."

Five Held As Witnesses In Murder

TRENTON (UPI) — Police arrested five Trenton men as material witnesses today in the murder of James Freeman, who was strangled with his T-shirt shortly before Christmas.

Police Chief Louis F. Neese said the arrests put his department "closer to a solution than ever before. I feel that through further question of the suspects we will come up with information that will ultimately lead to solving the crime."

Arrested were William Cotton, 38; Henry Edwards, 25; James Jones, 18; and Charles Mitchell, 20. All were held without bail in the Mercer County jail.

Freeman, a 20-year-old Negro who had lived at 39 Kelsey Ave., was found dead in the rear of an apartment house on Brunswick Ave. last Dec. 22. His feet and hands were bound and he had been strangled.

Detectives had been unable to find a motive for the killing. Police described him as a "good citizen," with no previous police record and no apparent enemies.

Neese said two of the suspects, Cotton and Edwards, had been close friends of Freeman and had lived in his apartment house.

Doylestown Area Planned For 2nd Field

The Bucks County Airport Authority last night approved the Quaker Municipal Airport as a site for a county airport.

The authority resolved to apply for federal and state funds to develop the county airport pending negotiations to purchase the site. The authority members also recommended a feasibility study for another county airport in the Doylestown area.

The airport group received bids to sell the Quakertown Airport of ten acres for $230,000 and the 123 Skyron Airport in Doylestown for $246,000.

Tentative Approval

The Quakertown site already has tentative approval for state and federal funds according to George Setman, who now operates it.

The authority must apply before Jan. 30 to get the funds next year.

Louis Inwood Associates of Philadelphia recently completed a feasibility of the Quakertown Airport.

Farley Quits 2 Libraries

Middletown Township Supervisor Walter Farley Jr. resigned as township representative to the Regional and Langhorne - Middletown library boards during last night's supervisors' meeting.

In his written resignation, Farley offered to serve as "observer," representative until an appointee is named.

His offer was accepted with Supervisor Patrick Shields stating that Farley was to be commended for volunteering to serve in an ex-officio capacity until someone else is named.

In other action, the board turned over to the Pennsylvania Economy League for study a proposed ordinance banning overnight parking in the township.

Township Engineer Reappointed
The supervisors have been considering the ordinance, which would prohibit parking on streets between 2 and 6 a.m., because it would make it easier to keep streets clear of snow.

Gerald Summerson, township engineer, was reappointed as township engineer by the supervisors with Farley voting against his appointment and Shields obtaining from the vote.

Summerson, of the firm of Pickering, Cortis, and Summerson, will serve at the same rates as previously, the supervisors decided. Summerson, whose new term expires Jan. 1, 1967, receives $300 a year as retainer and a flat rate schedule for specific tasks.

Meeting Scheduled
The supervisors also appointed Elmer Ervin to the building code board of appeals. Ervin also serves on the township board of adjustment.

A meeting with the municipal authority was scheduled by the supervisors to discuss payment of connection fees for the Oakhurst-Langhorne Gables sewer project. The public meeting was scheduled Tuesday at 10 p.m. in the township building.

Township Manager Charles Melchior was instructed by the supervisors to contract with new Tax Collector Robert Saunders for rental of office space.

E. William Lindeberg paid the township $1,200 during the last year he held the tax collector's position.
